

DoKomi accreditation guidelines for press & content creators

For a successful accreditation as a press representative or content creator at DoKomi, we ask you to read the following guidelines carefully and fill out the form on the website. Informal accreditation requests and requests that are not sent to us via the form will not be considered. Due to the extensive examination procedure, advance accreditation is required; on-site accreditation will only be possible to a limited extent.

Requirements:

- You must be at least 18 years old (youth press excluded!)
- You intend to report on DoKomi in text, photo and/or film
- Proof of reporting

1# Press Accreditation:

- Please provide the following information for a successful accreditation:
 - Submission of a named article (not older than 6 months!)
 - Submission of an imprint or editorial list in which you are listed as an employee or publisher
 - Submission of a written order from a full editorial team
 - Submission of a valid press card from a domestic or foreign journalists' association
 - Present a valid ID from a youth press organization or confirmation from your school

2# Content Creator Accreditation:

- You must identify yourself as the operator of the channel
- Your channel should have existed for at least six months and have reasonable reach
- The content on your channel must contain a thematic reference to DoKomi
- Articles relevant to the target group appear regularly on your channel
- We reserve the right to limit the number of people permitted per medium
- If you would like to hold a fan meeting at DoKomi, please apply here for a slot in our Content Creator Meet & Greet Area

The following are generally excluded from accreditation:

- People who are only privately active on social networks
- Written assignments from a freelance journalist
- People who cannot prove any journalistic legitimation or private person acting as an accompanying person

Accreditation for previous events does not automatically mean authorization for the current trade fair. There is no right to accreditation. The accreditation form must be filled out completely and truthfully. Every application is checked by our team. We reserve the right to request further proof of journalistic activity. Your data will only be used internally and will not be passed on to third parties.
